Parliamentary.

It was getting late, and still the venerable ex-United States senator lingered in the parlor with the young people. Evidently something had to be done. "I hope, papa," said his daughter, gently but resolutely, "that you will not be offended if I now move a close call of the house, during which all persons not entitled to a voice in the proceedings will please retire, while Charlie and I discuss a question of personal privilege!"

Superfluous Labor Counts.

The men who have achieved success are the men who have worked and thought more than was absolutely necessary, who have not been content with knowledge sufficient for the present need, but who have sought additional knowledge and stored it away for the emergency reserve. It is the superfluous labor that equips a man for everything that counts in life.

Get the exchange habit.

Get the exchange habit. It's an economical one. Tired of your camera? Before you buy that guitar, suppose you find the fellow who has a guitar enjoying the same leisure your camera is. We Americans buy right and left as the impulse moves us, a little forethought and a want ad will get what you want, and good as new—nearly always.

Don't lay your paper aside until you have looked over the "Classified." Often it's as important as your morning mail. A fortune may stare up at you from these columns any day.
